"The purpose of this Act is to ... ensure protection for the rights of authors..."

When I wear a costume like a witch, I'd like to recite the text of the Copyright Act. ♥

Yawn...

I'm sleep-deprived...

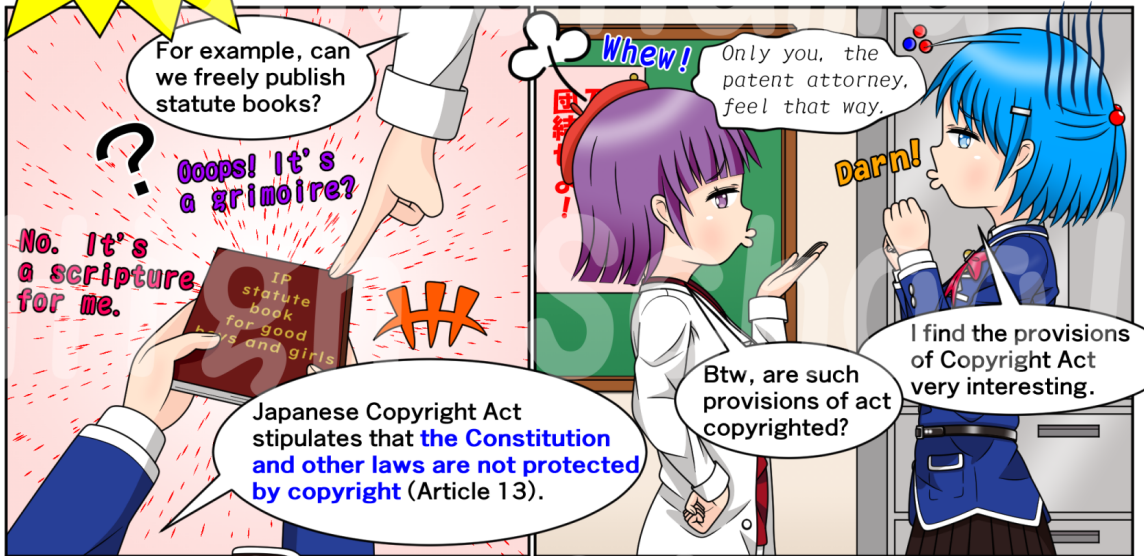

Wizard girl

Thank you for making costumes for the school festival. You look sleepy, are you okay?

I'll choose the costume that suits you, so please try it on from this costume.

Take off your costume now! Don't cast a spell to put me to sleep!!

Intellectual properties are by your side. (3)
Are provisions of act copyrighted?

For example, can we freely publish statute books?

Oops! It's a grimoire?
No. It's a scripture for me.

IP statute book for good boys and girls

Japanese Copyright Act stipulates that the Constitution and other laws are not protected by copyright (Article 13).

Whew!

Only you, the patent attorney, feel that way.

Darn!

Btw, are such provisions of act copyrighted?

I find the provisions of Copyright Act very interesting.

Surprisingly, Kurika-chan put a melody on the Copyright Act and made it into a song for me.

"..... thereby to contribute to the development of culture." (Article 1).

Hey! Are you listening?

Try on this costume next.

OK★

That's right!

So, Copyright Act allows us to use the laws freely, including the publication of statute books.

Certainly, if the state monopolizes the laws with copyright, everyone will not be able to use them and will be in trouble.
