

But the number of members of the IP club didn't increase at all.

We've grown a lot over the past year.

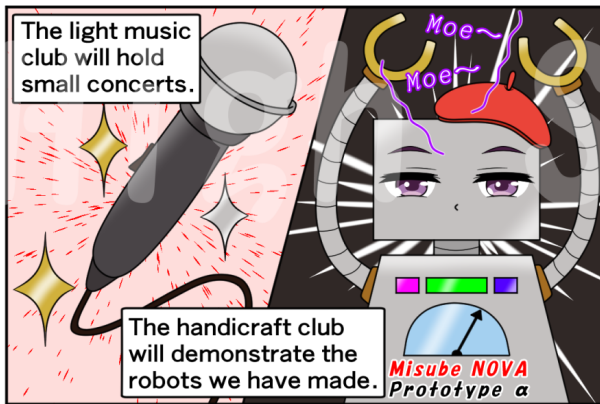

Intellectual properties are by your side. (9)

You should promote IP clubs' activities to invite new members.

The IP Club has not yet been recognized as an official club as it does not have 5 members.

How will your clubs present your activities?

The light music club will hold small concerts.

The handicraft club will demonstrate the robots we have made.

I'll recite the 'Intellectual Property Basic Act' at meetings to present clubs to new students.

That's a very impressive way of appeal, but then no new members will come to the IP club this year as well.

I mistakenly thought you were reciting Pi.

The manga club draws portraits of new members and presents them.

I see. Fortunately, there is an act that provides the basic policies of Japanese IP system.

So, it is a good idea to present in an impressive way on the basic themes of IP club's activities.
